DISCOVER THE LEFT BANK

the place where beautiful minds meet

The street where the Hotel Bel Ami is located was the west wing of the Abbey of Saint-Germain. At the end of the 14th century, Pope Alexander III could access the monastery through a door located at the current location of the hotel lobby. Two angels engraved in the stone facade of the hotel are all that remains of this access.

During the 18th century, the National Printing Office, in charge of the official documentation of the Parliament, occupied the building. It is therefore quite appropriate to say that the Hôtel Bel Ami, its facade bearing the marks of the Industrial Revolution and its conversion into a printing house, had to bear the name of one of the French literary works of the 19th century. The best known, Bel-Ami, written by Guy de Maupassant.

The Hotel Bel Ami, located a few steps from the Place Saint-Germain-des-Prés and a few minutes from the "Café de Flore" and the restaurant "Les deux Magots", the privileged places of Sartre, Simone de Beauvoir, Marguerite Duras and all their existentialist cohort.

While in recent years, major fashion houses such as Louis Vuitton, Ralph Lauren and Emporio Armani have moved closer to the left bank alongside designer boutiques, the Place Saint-Germain-des-Prés continues to attract artists and intellectuals.

THE HOTEL & SAINT-GERMAIN-DES-PRÉS

The heart of Saint-Germain-des-Prés beats within the walls of the Hotel Bel Ami. True to the literary tradition of this vibrant Parisian district, stylish relaxation is the order of the day in this contemporary hotel with a welcoming and restful atmosphere.

A lively and warm décor infuses the hotel with the dynamic spirit of Saint-Germain-des-Prés. Creating a contemporary and elegant setting that caters ideally to the needs of both business and leisure travelers.
